Residence Burned Down.

The very neat white residence built by Mr. August Winholz, and owned by Andreas Rederle, took fire and burned down on Tuesday morning. The building was occupied by two tenants, and in the rear of the main building was a frame one story building used by Mr. Scherer as a cooper shop. In this building the fire started and when discovered a little before six
a. m., the whole of the interior of the building was on fire.

The fire department were promptly on the ground, but were unable to do much towards putting out the fire on account of a lack of hose, and poor hose &c. The loss on the building is total. Mr. Scherer and the other tenant lose several hundred dollars. Mr. Rederle, has the sympathy of the community in his loss.

The Concert & Theatre.

The entertainment given by the Concordia Singing Society last Monday, assisted by Pioneer Mannerchor, of Young America, was the event of the season, and called together a large crowd of people.

The opening song the "Hunters March" by the Concordia, with Orchestra, was well executed and clearly indicated that our society is improving rapidly.

The A. B. C. duett by the Misses Doeltz, and the Quartett by the four Bachmann children, were so well rendered that they drew rap-idous applause.

"Homage of the Forest" a duett by Julius & Bertha Schaler, was so well rendered as to call for an encore.

The singing by the Pioneer Man-nerchor, was as usual, grand. The "Concert: Rehearsal" was so commended as to bring down the house.

The Theatre, was much better rendered than expected. Messrs Hoffmann, Kerker, Hartmann, De-gen, Besemann and in fact all the participants acquitted themselves with credit.

Our streets at present, present a sort of dreary appearance. Out of town however there is mud enough, but the warm sun's rays will soon bring dust.

To The Editor:

Chaska VALLEY HERALD.

I find in your issue of April 9th 1885,

an article under the heading of "The last found" charging me and my wife in being instrumental in the running away of

Anna Stargardt, step daughter of Fred

Bullmer of this Village. I pronounce the charge as utterly false and without any foundation. Said neighbor being undoubtedly no other than Mr Bullmer himself. I would ask Mr Bullmer to mind his own business and let myself and my wife alone. We certainly will mind our business without his or said neighbors advice.

For further information I refer all parties interested to an article from Chief

West of Minneapolis and inserted in the Minneapolis Tribune of March 27, 1885,

which reads as follows:

"The Chaska runaway." The little girl who disappeared from Chaska some time ago, was found yesterday at the house of Mr Barry No 416 Fourth

Avenue South. Her name is Anna

Stargardt and she is a step daughter of Mr Bullmer. She stated to Chief

West that she left home because she was punished by her father for something which she did not do, she did not have any money to come here with, but she got on the train and a close to pass.

On arriving in the City she went to Mr

Barrys house, and immediately started out to seek employ ment, after visiting several indigent offices without success

she went to that of A A Foster 500 1/2

"HER NAME"
Then father took the Bible down
And in his own old-fashioned hand
Upon the record page he wrote
The name of the girl who had Gone from him so long ago.
At giving such a little fair,
The record, even, and do not
That suggested the name.
And under second column
"A name to warm and ordinary Could not be found in one should
As that same appellation 'Mary.'"
And over and over again they read
Her yellow curls, her baby face;
"Oh, call her 'Elizabeth,' or 'Maud,' Or 'Christine,' for her name was
But time will change this golden piece
To a name in dusty olden days;
For better name for 'Beatrice,'
Or 'Imogene,' serene and tender."
"Oh, name the child for Aunt Louise,
For she, good soul, is well-to-do."
The compliment is sure to please,
And most of all the darling 'Lou.'
And when the child was born,
The name 'Louise' was given,
The name of the girl who had
Gone from him so long ago.
The name of the girl who had
Gone from him so long ago.
The name of the girl who had
Gone from him so long ago.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD FAILURE.

CHAPTER I.
"I am a plain woman, Mr. Forrester, a very plain woman."
"Yes, madam, you are very plain,
still for a woman of your age, I think you appear well enough."
"I didn't mean that," she said with a jerk of her head, accompanied by
a sharp noise that sounded like a snap.
"If you think that I am plain, you needn't come where I am. Yes, I am a plain woman, and I think that it is best to be frank with you. Frankness is one of the virtues that should receive special cultivation, and I have cultivated it. I do not approve of your attentions to Caroline. You are a kind-hearted and generous man, perhaps, but I don't like to see it
quite levelled at me."
"How?"
"Well, you gambled."
"So do you."
"What? You gambled? I never gambled in my life."
"You are gambling now."
"What?"
"Yes, gambling now. Speculating
on my lack of morality."
"Mr. Forrester, in spite of myself, you keep me in a good humor, but
good humor is one thing and judgment
is another."
"That's a fact, Mrs. Andrews, and I have noticed that persons of best humor are frequently people of poor judgment. I can consent to your plan for the former, but of the latter, I fear
you are somewhat short. It is true that I have an occasional horse race,
but I hope you do not think that I
put my wife on the hotel horse against anything but a good horse. I have won about as much money as I have lost, and taking the amusement
of profits, my net gains have been quite small."
"That's all very well, Mr. Forrester,
but I cannot tolerate gambling."
"Let me see, Mrs. Andrews. I have a widowed lady who dabbles somewhat in cotton futures. The market went against her, and—well, she was
slightly frost-bitten."
"Who told you that?"
"Never mind. This lady, according
to her own confession, is very plain,
but it seemed that the sharpest
fool here to be decidedly attractive."
"You ought to be ashamed of yourself to stand up there and talk to me
that way."
"Well, I'll sit down."
"No, you needn't. I do not wish to give you any evidence of my approval.
You may make this visit as short as you please. You cannot make it too short to suit me."
"Now, of all gambling," said the young man, seating himself, "nothing
hopes on cotton futures is the most hazardous. My father lost his head
that way."
"Don't tempt me. I was advised to invest a few hundred dollars. I lost,
but I learned a lesson."
"Yes, never. I put my money on the red when you should have put it on the black. That's all very well, but suppose you had won? Don't you think that you would have risked a few more
hundred dollars?"
"No, I don't. For I saw the evil."
"After you had lost, but that has nothing to do with Caroline. I love that girl, hang if I don't. She is not beautiful, looking somewhat after her
mother, but she is attractive—faking somewhat after her father.
I love her very dearly; and, yes, she
is so that I can ever love any one else.
I think that I can make a good wife
of her."
"You good for nothing, amiable
ascal, you ought to be ashamed of
yourself to sit there and talk that
way."
"I'll stand up, then."
"I'd rather see you walk."
"Which I'll have to do if I swap
horses many more times. Mrs.
Andrews, any one can speak glibly of marriage—Caroline knows
me."
"She does not."
"She is a truthful girl, Mrs. Andrews.
You may not have discovered this, but it is a fact. Where is the
dame?"
"None of your business."
"Of course not, but where is she?
Out chasing the twatly butler or
engaged in the exciting ride of a stick-
horse?"
"You are a fool."
"You compliment me. Oh, excited Mrs. Andrews, in perilous night, whose banners arise on the battlements
height."
"Tom Forrester, you are crazy?"
"Can I see the dame?"
"When in sight, yes."
"Oh, excited!"
Mrs. Andrews rushed from the room. The young man snatched hastily away. Stopping for a moment, he leaned on the gate, then with a gas, as though he were too lazy to sing, he crossed the road, climbed
the fence and disappeared in the woods.
Mrs. Andrews was a widow of several years experience. She had been a widow ever since old General Andrews
was found dead in a New Orleans hotel. The old fellow was a convivial
and it was thought that his death
resulted from the inability of his physical self to keep pace with his appetite. Mrs. Andrews, as the season for
"pitching" the crop had come, spent
but little time in the house. Busy days, when the land was too wet to
be plowed, she grieved greatly, but when
the sun shone, she was out among the
hands, urging them to a vigorous discharge of duty. Young Forrester was known as the "neighborhood failure."
He had rolled through college and spluttered through a law course; had
opened an office in the county town
and had promptly closed it. He had secured a position on a daily paper, but
had been discharged—had done nearly
everything to exhibit a lack of competence, but had accomplished nothing to
exhibit a purpose in life.
Caroline Andrews was as Forrester
had said, an attractive girl. She was bright and original, and report said that she had been expelled from a
boarding school for playing as a coun-
tessing prank on a maiden teacher.
She and Forrester fell in love with each other, the people said, on account of a similarity of "triflingness."

CHAPTER II.
When Forrester reached home, or rather the farm house where he boarded "on time," he went to his room, seated himself at a table and began to write. The table was covered with manuscript and the floor was strewn with scraps of paper—rejected expressions of thought.
Some one entered the room and said that dinner was ready, but he paid no attention. Evening found him still seated at the table. He soaped long enough to get a lamp, but disregarding a summons to supper, he bent himself to his work. Late at night he turned down the lights and went to bed, but unable to sleep he arose and went to work again. Occasionally he would scratch out a word—a line, and then, after flushing a page, he would read it; then it into little bits and throw it on the floor. When the sun came up and made the lamp-light look dim, he went to bed and slept until dinner time. After dinner he went over to the Andrews place. He found Caroline in the sitting room. Looking around, and seeing no one else, he kissed the girl.
"Where's the old lady?"
"Ma?"
"I'm asleep."
"Gone out to the field."
"She says that we shall not marry each other."
"Yes, but she does not know, does she?" kissing him.
"I hope that she is in error."
"What do you mean by doing? Your eyes are red."
"Working on my book. When I didn't mean that," she said with
a jerk of her head, accompanied by
a sharp noise that sounded like a snap.
"If you think that I am plain, you
needn't come where I am. Yes, I am a plain woman, and I think that it
is best to be frank with you. Frank-
ness is one of the virtues that should
receive special cultivation, and I have cultivated it. I do not approve of
your attentions to Caroline. You are
a kind-hearted and generous man, perhaps, but I don't like to see it
quite levelled at me."
"How?"
"Well, you gambled."
"So do you."
"What? You gambled? I never
gambled in my life."
"You are gambling now."
"What?"
"Yes, gambling now. Speculating
on my lack of morality."
"Mr. Forrester, in spite of myself,
you keep me in a good humor, but
good humor is one thing and judgment
is another."
"That's a fact, Mrs. Andrews, and I have noticed that persons of best humor are frequently people of poor judgment. I can consent to your plan for
the former, but of the latter, I fear
you are somewhat short. It is true
that I have an occasional horse race,
but I hope you do not think that I
put my wife on the hotel horse
against anything but a good horse. I have won about as much money as I
have lost, and taking the amusement
of profits, my net gains have been
quite small."
"That's all very well, Mr. Forrester,
but I cannot tolerate gambling."
"Let me see, Mrs. Andrews. I have a widowed lady who dabbles somewhat in cotton futures. The market
went against her, and—well, she was
slightly frost-bitten."
"Who told you that?"
"Never mind. This lady, according
to her own confession, is very plain,
but it seemed that the sharpest
fool here to be decidedly attractive."
"You ought to be ashamed of your-
self to stand up there and talk to me
that way."
"Well, I'll sit down."
"No, you needn't. I do not wish to
give you any evidence of my approval.
You may make this visit as short as
you please. You cannot make it too
short to suit me."
"Now, of all gambling," said the
young man, seating himself, "nothing
hopes on cotton futures is the most
hazardous. My father lost his head
that way."
"Don't tempt me. I was advised to invest a few hundred dollars. I lost,
but I learned a lesson."
"Yes, never. I put my money on the
red when you should have put it on
the black. That's all very well, but suppose you had won? Don't you think
that you would have risked a few more
hundred dollars?"
"No, I don't. For I saw the evil."
"After you had lost, but that has nothing to do with Caroline. I love
that girl, hang if I don't. She is not
beautiful, looking somewhat after her
mother, but she is attractive—fak-
ing somewhat after her father.
I love her very dearly; and, yes, she
is so that I can ever love any one else.
I think that I can make a good wife
of her."
"You good for nothing, amiable
ascal, you ought to be ashamed of
yourself to sit there and talk that
way."
"I'll stand up, then."
"I'd rather see you walk."
"Which I'll have to do if I swap
horses many more times. Mrs.
Andrews, any one can speak
glibly of marriage—Caroline knows
me."
"She does not."
"She is a truthful girl, Mrs. Andrews.
You may not have discovered
this, but it is a fact. Where is the
dame?"
"None of your business."
"Of course not, but where is she?
Out chasing the twatly butler or
engaged in the exciting ride of a stick-
horse?"
"You are a fool."
"You compliment me. Oh, excited
Mrs. Andrews, in perilous night, whose banners arise on the battlements
height."
"Tom Forrester, you are crazy?"
"Can I see the dame?"
"When in sight, yes."
"Oh, excited!"
Mrs. Andrews rushed from the
room. The young man snatched
hastily away. Stopping for a moment,
he leaned on the gate, then with a
gas, as though he were too lazy to
sing, he crossed the road, climbed
the fence and disappeared in the woods.
Mrs. Andrews was a widow of several years experience. She had been a
widow ever since old General Andrews
was found dead in a New Orleans hotel. The old fellow was a convivial
and it was thought that his death
resulted from the inability of his physical self to keep pace with his appetite. Mrs. Andrews, as the season for
"pitching" the crop had come, spent
but little time in the house. Busy
days, when the land was too wet to
be plowed, she grieved greatly, but when
the sun shone, she was out among the
hands, urging them to a vigorous discharge of duty. Young Forrester was
known as the "neighborhood failure."
He had rolled through college and
spluttered through a law course; had
opened an office in the county town
and had promptly closed it. He had secured a position on a daily paper, but
had been discharged—had done nearly
everything to exhibit a lack of competence, but had accomplished nothing to
exhibit a purpose in life.
Caroline Andrews was as Forrester
had said, an attractive girl. She was
bright and original, and report said
that she had been expelled from a
boarding school for playing as a coun-
tessing prank on a maiden teacher.
She and Forrester fell in love with

tell you, but I didn't. Mother has told you, hasn't she?"
"She hasn't told me anything. She has only shown me what a hypocrite she is."
"Don't say that, for you'd have to take it back. I'll tell you something that will open your eyes. Some time ago, mother gave me a check for ten thousand dollars, payable to your order. Wait until I get through. She said that she would try to make something of the check until the day of our marriage. When she heard that you were writing a book, she knew what to do. She said that the book is bound to be a failure, and when it proves to be so,
she will have to get married at once.
But the book wasn't a failure, was it,
ma?"
The old lady had entered the room.
"Goodness you, madam—"
"Never mind, Tom. Don't get me stirred up. If you do, I'll let the burn. No horse races, Tom. I know what you are going to say, sir. You lambaste me. If everything goes well, I will be able to support you. What you are crying for, you big booby?
The reason, come to the point. I'll Read, in Arkansas Traveler."

WALKS AND TALKS ON THE FARM.

I have not had a single case of goitre in lambs for many years. I do not know that there is any cure for it. I am inclined to think that it is caused by general debility, caused in many cases by keeping the sheep in close damp cellars or barns. A French man told me that he had seen it in the "humidities of the habitations."

In the management of sheep there is no one point of greater importance than fresh air, and a dry place to lie down. Too much damp straw under the sheep will do them more harm than a cold. I have seen sheep that like a little clean straw scattered on the shed every day. Stir up the soil under the sheep, and you will find it an inch or so of fresh straw on top.
The sheep will lie down and you will see how much they will enjoy it.

"Oh, I don't know. I just don't see why I should. Sometimes I have great faith in it, and the first thing I know it is in her stomach that I can scarcely keep from burning it."

"I have no doubt of its success, Tom."

"You do not know. Your belief is in me, and your love for me gives you a good opinion of the work; but truly I believe that I'll ever find a publisher."

"Now, Tom, for my sake, keep on writing. It will be a success."

"How can it? The world is full of books."

"But none like the one you will write. The slightest difference. You know that I love you devotedly and that even though mother should persist in her unreasonable objections—here comes mother."

When Mrs. Andrews entered the room, Tom and Caroline were sitting on the sofa, looking at each other.
"Caroline, go upstairs. The young lady called." "Mr. Forrester, did I not make myself plain yesterday?"
"Oh, no, Mrs. Andrews, you did not make yourself plain yesterday. May I ever see you again, I hope you will make plain."

"Well, sir, if I kind advice will not keep you away from my work, I shall see you again. I am sure that you will not find me so difficult to write to."

"You won't find me so difficult to write to. I have studied it thoroughly and am prepared to write to you."

"It's lack of virtue caused your pursue of it, I doubtless."

"Caroline tells me that you are writing a book."

"What sort of a book?"

"A novel."

"A novel? I didn't know but you were writing fiction."

"Wonder you hadn't thought it was a novel. I am sure that you would have thought it was a novel."

"Don't you want me? I lost no one's money but my own, and I lost nothing but my own."

"Oh, no, and it did not seem to be very much business for yourself."

"Why were you and Caroline were sitting so far apart when I came in? Had you been quarrelling?"

"Forrester did not see Caroline again until after his book had been completed, and then he met her at a neighborhood failure. The book had been published by a reputable publisher. The young author lacked faith in the venture, for in speaking to Caroline, he said that he was not so sure of step. The opinion of a publisher, after all, is worth no more than the opinion of any other shrewd business man.
It will be a failure."

Forrester was a great success. The
magazines and newspapers lauded it,
but its large sale was its greatest
feature of achievement.

One evening, after receiving an encouraging letter and a still more encouraging check from his publishers,
Forrester called at the house of Mrs.
Andrews. She was sitting alone,
knitting.

"Come in," she said when she saw him approach the open door. "Have
this seat," arising. "I have not seen
you for a long time. They tell me that your book is a success. I am truly glad to hear it for I would not
think that the neighborhood failure
would be so successful. While I had no objections to you, and while I always encourage you, you suit, yet I was a little anxious. I read the book, and I was very much surprised. I must say, for I did not think you could write so many pretty things. Caroline has gone over to Peterson's. She will be back in a moment."

Forrester was a great success. The
magazines and newspapers lauded it,
but its large sale was its greatest
feature of achievement.

One evening, after receiving an encouraging letter and a still more encouraging check from his publishers,
Forrester called at the house of Mrs.
Andrews. She was sitting alone,
knitting.

"Come in," she said when she saw
him approach the open door. "Have
this seat," arising. "I have not seen
you for a long time. They tell me that
your book is a success. I am truly
glad to hear it for I would not
think that the neighborhood failure
would be so successful. While I had no objections to you, and while I
always encourage you, you suit, yet I
was a little anxious. I read the book,
and I was very much surprised. I
must say, for I did not think you could
write so many pretty things. Caroline
has gone over to Peterson's. She will
be back in a moment."

HOCKEY AND COUNTY NEWS.

Frank Eizell, has had a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. He is improving now.

Peter Eren and family, have been in town a few days visiting relatives.

We publish the statement in this issue, and will not fool our readers a second time.

Business in town last week was extremely dull, farmers were kept busy in the fields and clearing up brush and timber.

Sheriff DuToit, has appointed a deputy to watch the shore of Lake Minnetonka, and see that the law of late winter is not violated.

Julius Enger, has built a very neat addition to his dwelling, and otherwise added to its appearance by putting in a bay window.

Messrs Enger & Winholz, have the contract to do the wood work on Peter Lano's new farm residence. They commenced work last week.

John Bierstette has commenced work on a rear addition to his sample room. It will be enlarged and a Billiard Table put in.

For Oils and Paints of different grades, call at the drug store. Prices are down and now is your time to buy.

John Ehrmantraut, has accepted a position as butcher, in Schumacher Shop, Waconia, John is a good butcher.

The H. & D. Railroad, have just completed a new water tank in the place of the one partially burned down last winter.

Bierline & Sons, have already manufactured five of his patent saw machines. They say the machines work to a charm.

Casper Schmidt, son of John Schmidt, came down from Little Falls Minn., last Saturday for a weeks visit with his relatives.

We were a little late with our issue last week, expecting to be able to publish the Financial Statement of the county. It was not ready in time, however.

Mr. G. Merz, of Ashland Wis., who has been out visiting his parents at St. Bonifacius, returned home last Thursday evening, after a pleasant visit of nearly two weeks.

The City Drug Store, has recently received the largest assortment of wall papers, of all qualities ever brought to this town. Call and examine stock and prices.

It is rumored in our society circles, with apparent good authority that Dr. Schillock of this village, will shortly wed Miss Clara Lewis. If correct, we wish them many years of unalloyed happiness.

The Legislature at its last session passed a law, prohibiting justices of the peace from holding their offices in a saloon or in a room having a door leading into a saloon. This will effect some of our county justices.

Fred Becker, formerly a cigar maker and resident of Chaska, was in town on Thursday and Friday, selling cheap cigars belonging to the bankrupt stock of Smith & Kosbach, of Minneapolis.

We understand that the suit, case of State of Minnesota vs John Lofeld, for selling liquors without a license, was dismissed upon motion of defendants attorney on account of defect in warrant.

A late number of the Litchfield Independent, says that Miss Annie Meisenberg, formerly of Chanhassen, was married at that place to Mr. E. J. Gould. The many friends of the bride in this county wish her happiness.

Miss Bridget Colbert, daughter of Mrs. Pat. Colbert, of Hancock is at Le Sueur, under the care of Dr. Fisher. She has been unwell for a number of years. We hope to hear of her speedy recovery.

Minnie Berry, a bright little grandchild of Mr & Mrs. Niccum, died last Thursday of diphtheria, and was taken to Plato for burial. The grief stricken parents have our sympathy.

Our old friend O C Meaker, of Excelsior, invited a party of some 30 persons to an old fashioned New York "sugar party" in his sugar bush last Wednesday week. They all report having a grand time, Mr. and Mrs. Meaker proving themselves the most generous of hosts.

Mr & Mrs Martin Van Sloun, of this village, take this method of returning their heartfelt thanks to their dear neighbors and friends who rendered them so much assistance and comfort during the illness of their dear child.

The many friends of Mrs. Nicholas Rachel, of Chanhassen, will be sorry to learn that she has become insane and been taken to the Asylum at St. Peter. It is to be hoped, however, that she will speedily recover under proper treatment. We deeply sympathize with the afflicted family.

Last week a number of our "sportsmen" headed by Mika, visited the Lakes above Carver, expecting to "bag" a large number of "mallards." On reaching the lake they were greatly pleased to behold a "flock of supposed mallards," with in easy gunshot and commenced a furious fusillade on a lot of Johnny Nelson's wooden "Decoy Ducks," Selah.

We would respectfully call the attention of our City Council to the fact that the street lamps at the corner of 2d & Pine Sts. and at the Catholic Church, should be lighted every night as long as the brick is piled in the street in front of the church. It may save many accidents and the City some costs in the near future.

Joseph Kessler, one of the first settlers of Carver County, and for seven or eight years a resident of Deadwood in the Black Hill, arrived in Chaska last Friday, on a visit to relatives and friends and will remain a couple of weeks, after which he will visit Cincinnati, Florida and the World's Exposition. From there he will again penetrate the Gold fields of the far west, having disposed of his property at Deadwood.

Fritz Wommer, of the firm of Holmes, Helgeson & Wommer, of Carver, was in town last week shaking hands with his old friends. By the way this firm has just received the largest and best assortment of clothing and dry goods ever brought to this county. Call and see.

Mr. Bierlein, of the Union Brewery has our thanks for an eighth of beer, which rivalled the best Minneapolis manufacture.

The bids for building the new school house ranged from $9,000 to $10,200, and not having sufficient money on hand, the bids were rejected.

Monthly Stock Fair

Next Saturday, April 25th, is our monthly cattle fair, and owing to the bad state of the roads, and being in the midst of the seeding season, we do not expect that it will be as largely attended as usual.

New Advertisement.

In another column will be found a new ad of the Farmers Bank, Waconia. This Bank was started about four years ago, and has been doing a steadily increasing business ever since, and is one of the leading and soundest institutions of the kind in the county, and is deserving of the generous support it is receiving from the people of that section. Its presiding spirit is our friend Geo. Mix, cashier, one of the most accommodating and popular gentlemen to be found anywhere, and under his supervision we predict a continuance of its prosperity. The Bank has ample capital to accommodate all its customers.

Heening & Oerter.

We again call the attention of our readers to the column add of the enterprising firm which appears in this issue of the HERALD. This firm mean just what they say, and when they announce a reduction in prices, you may expect to get them. When they say they have a new stock from which to select, you can depend upon that. Try them and see.

Died.

At her residence in the town of Chanhassen, on the 15th day of April, A. D. 1885, Mrs. Catherine Koch, wife of John Koch, aged 76 years.

Mrs. John Koch, had been an invalid for many years, and death in this case may be regarded as a blessing. Mrs. K. was a pioneer settler in this county and had a very large circle of warm friends who deeply sympathize with her husband and daughters in their affliction.

The funeral took place last Friday at 2 o'clock from her late residence and her remains were followed to the grave by a large concourse of mourning friends and relatives. Mr. Fred Schütz, of Carver, officiated at the grave.

DIED

Jacob Bierlein lost a three year old son on Saturday night of Diphtheria. It had been sick for only a short time, and was considered out of danger on Saturday noon, but towards evening it took a turn for the worse and died at about 12 o'clock Saturday night. This is Mr & Mrs Bierlein's only child and the blow is a terrible one to them. They have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their affliction.

Martin Van Sloun also lost an interesting son on Saturday, ten months old of lung fever. The family also have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and relatives in their affliction.

Personal Tax Payors.

Delinquent personal tax payers in Watertown and Hollywood will be called upon for their taxes at once by Swan Lusty of Watertown deputy Sheriff. Those of the town of Young America, Camden, Hancock and a part of Benton will be collected by Deputy Sheriff G. Trick of Young America. In the balance of the county Sheriff DuToit will do the collecting personally.

Milwaukee Twine Binder.

The undersigned would respectfully notify the farmers of Carver County, that he has been appointed agent for the Milwaukee Twine Binder, formerly the Demmett, and would invite them to examine the machine before buying elsewhere, and I guarantee you satisfaction as to price, and there is not a better Binder made than the Milwaukee, and the company claim it to be the lightest and easiest draft machine made and fully warranted. I am also agent for their Mower. JOSEPH ESS.

Chaska Cornet Band.

Charley Ramsdill, has ordered a new Baritone, to be used in our Chaska Band, and John Meyer will "manipulate the keys," this and one or two other changes which he will make, will give Chaska one of the best bands in the State. The music furnished by them at the Concordia Concert, was a surprise to everyone, and speaks very highly of Mr. Ramsdill as a leader, and showed a marked improvement in the band. We hope that the band will give us a concert soon of their own, which we are sure will be well patronized.

Change In Annual School Meetings.

The late Legislature changed the time of the annual school meetings to the third Saturday in July. Heretofore the meetings have been held on the first Saturday in September. District clerks should make a note of the change in the law, by posting notices a month ahead of time in their respective districts.

Dentistry.

All who wish to have work done will find him at Miss Burkhardt's, Millinery Store, Chaska.

Dated Chaska, April 12th 1885.

Hastings & Dakota Depot.

Its now some months since the H. & D. Depot at this place burned down, and up to this time no steps have been taken by the Company to rebuild the same. Our citizens have thus far made no complaints, wishing to give the company ample time in which to rebuild, but seeing that there is no virtue in forbearance, intend to take the "bull" by the horn, and force them to build under the law passed last winter, or know the reason why, and for that purpose a complaint has been drawn up and proceedings will be commenced against the company, if they do not heed this notice.

Prohibit Public Funerals.

Diphtheria is in our midst and the stringent regulations should be adopted by our Board of Health or City Council. Public funerals of this nature should be prohibited at once; only last Sunday we saw a large concourse of people attending the funeral of Mr. Jacob Bierlein's son. This is all wrong, and the proper authorities should, if necessary, to put a stop to this dangerous practice and prevent its spread.

Barbed Wire.

For the best 4 barbed galvanized wire for fencing, call on the undersigned. I have no poor wire as a bait for farmers for $4.20, but do have the genuine galvanized and licensed Lyman Wire, the very best made and which I know will make fences that will last and give satisfaction and which I will guarantee to sell as cheap for cash as anybody can sell it. JOSEPH ESS.

A Vile Slender Refuted.

Mr. Burton, I was recently informed for the first time, that a vile slander had been about and circulated in Chaska, by some dastardly villain, affecting the good name and character of my daughter Titie, and that of Henry, the son of my old friend Herman Brinkhaus of Chaska. The charge is too vile to repeat in this letter, but I take this method of branding it as an INFAMOUS FALSHOOD and the author a public enemy.

Minneapolis April 20th 1885.

PETER VOSS.

$50 Reward.

We will pay a reward of $50 for sufficient evidence to convict the author of the above slander as proved.

BRINKHAUS & VOSS.

We publish the notice of the School Board calling for the voting of $3,000 of additional bonds for the purpose of building a new school building. The election takes place on Tuesday, May 5th, between the hours of 9 a. m., and 4 p. m.

For our part, we think an $8,000 building plenty large enough for Chaska for years to come, and as our taxes are already high enough, prudence would dictate to build within our means.

Assessors Meeting.

The Assessors of the County meet at the Auditors office next Saturday, April 25th. It will be an important meeting, as the County Auditor will instruct the Assessors as to their duties as assessors in addition to their duties as Assessors.

Christ Elder, Tobias Ottinger, &

F. Linenfelder and wife, will leave on May 14th, for a visit to relatives and friends in Germany. They will be gone about five months.

Gottlieb, Beerline, successor to P.

Illis, in the "Union Brewery" is turning out a superior article of Lager Beer to his customers and is doing a fine business.

The "surprise law suit" State of Minnesota vs P. Reder, W. Pfum

H. Roers and others last week, tried before Peter Illis, cost the boys about $18, each, besides lawyers fees. Don't do so any more.

Real estate transfers are quite numerous in our village this spring

as can be noted in our columns weekly. It indicates a healthy state of affairs in our village, which must be gratifying to our citizens.

We judge that our beautiful Lake side Village was "booming" judging from the items of our correspondent from Wagonville. The new steamer will be a beauty. Coney

Island will also be far more attractive this season than last.

Real Estate is steadily advancing in Chaska, and shows that our citizens have not lost hope, but on the contrary look forward to a bright future. All we need is a good foundry and machine shop and a sash and door factory.

Mr. Koch, and Mr. Mike Engler

and family, desire us to return their sincere thanks to all of their neighbors who so kindly assisted them during the illness of the late

Mrs. Koch. They will never forget the kindness extended them.

Mr. & Mrs. Jacob Byhoffer have sold a lot 50 x 142 feet, situated between their residence and that of Mr. Neutgens, for the sum of $225, to Mrs. Zimmerman, of Lakewood.

It is the intention of Mrs. Z., to build on the lot at once and make this village her future home.

We understand that Mr. Thos.

Schutz, will shortly leave us for Minneapolis, and will make that city his future home, engaging in business with his son, Joseph. Mr.

& Mrs. Schutz have made many friends in this village in their stay with us and they all deeply regret their departure, but wish them unlimited success in their new home and new business venture.

Mr. Ber. Livermann, brewer

and resident of this village, "toots his horn" in the last issue of the Carver Press, in regular "hush whacking" style over what he claims to be a "no such thing," which appeared in the HERALD, in speaking of Mr. Brown his late brewer. Every word we said in that article is true and in denying

it Mr. B., is guilty of making misstatements; and he can stick a pin right there. Do you see.

A Severe Storm.

It commenced raining on Sunday night and continued all day Monday until about 5 o'clock, when it turned into a snow storm, snow falling to the depth of an inch or more, but it all disappeared by 10 o'clock the next day, and at this time of writing, the indications of good settled weather appear. It was the prelude to good weather.

Cattle Fair.

The monthly cattle fair last Saturday was much better attended

Carver Suicide.

On the morning of the 22nd inst.

Henry Gothman of Carver, went into his barn for the purpose of throwing down from the upper story

some hay for horses, and when about to ascend through the opening at the head of one of the stalls, he came suddenly in contact with a person hanging to an upright post of the stable, being thus suspended by a blue woollen scarf and was apparently dead and motionless. He immediately hastened to the office of Dr. Griffin, who with others quickly repaired to the body and hastily cut it down. They found the body still warm, but life was extinct. The body was then placed in the hook and ladder house and safely secured and the Coroner
